Dear Parents,

I would like to start by wishing you all a happy New Year and I hope that you and your family have had a restful break. There are two pieces of news that I would like to share with you as the new term gets underway.

First, I am pleased to say that following an illness towards the end of last term Mr Megnin has now recovered and he has returned to work this week.

Second, you may recall that I sent you an email to you in December regarding a reported incident involving a child in the Ras al Hamra area being approached in an intimidating manner by a stranger.

It has subsequently been reported to me that last week a BSM student was assaulted by a stranger outside his property on the Wave development. The incident is being treated seriously by the Royal Oman Police who are making a thorough investigation into the incident.

Whilst I do not wish to alarm parents unduly by highlighting both of these reports, I think it is important that we and our children should be aware of the potential dangers that our children may face in Muscat.

Yours faithfully,

Kai Vacher
