Dear Parents,

In Literacy this week, the children have been writing about 'Familiar Settings'. We have been watching and writing about 'Sid's bedroom' from 'Toy Story', describing it as a very spooky, unfriendly place using adventurous adjectives and similes. Next week, we will be asking the children to describe their own bedrooms as the main focus for their writing. The children will be making notes on their bedroom (what they can see, smell, hear and touch), before they write their descriptive piece. As an aid to their writing, we would appreciate a photograph of their bedroom, which will then serve as a visual stimulus to help them in their writing task.

Could your child please bring a photograph of their bedroom into school on Wednesday or Saturday or if this proves difficult maybe they could draw a detailed picture with the help of an adult?

With many thanks in advance for your continued support.

Sincerely,

Mr Edwards
