MUSCAT — As an induction to The British School Muscat and the highly successful and internationally recognised British A-Level programme offered at the school, students engaged in a challenging induction course organised by the Occupational Training Institute and Muscat Diving and Adventure Centre. The students were led by the new Head of Sixth Form, Nadia Megnin.

Workshops and motivational sessions introduced the students to new challenges through problem solving and team building exercises. The Occupational Training Institute course introduced the students to elements of working in team; developing working relationships; co-operation in and between teams; creative problem solving; interpersonal co-operation and organisational skills. Not only was the programme popular amongst the A-Level students, but it was a great preparation for future work skills.

The residential trip to Al Jabal al Akhdar was organised by Muscat Diving and Adventure Centre. Here students had to take part in a variety of activities including abseiling, which many had never tried before. Al Jabal al Akhdar is a beautiful setting and an excellent location for outdoor activities. “The induction course was designed to prepare the students to take on the challenges of the A-Level Programme and be a key and positive member of the British School Muscat Community,” said Nadia Megnin, the new Head of Sixth Form at the School. “We wish all of them success in their studies.”
